Monday 29

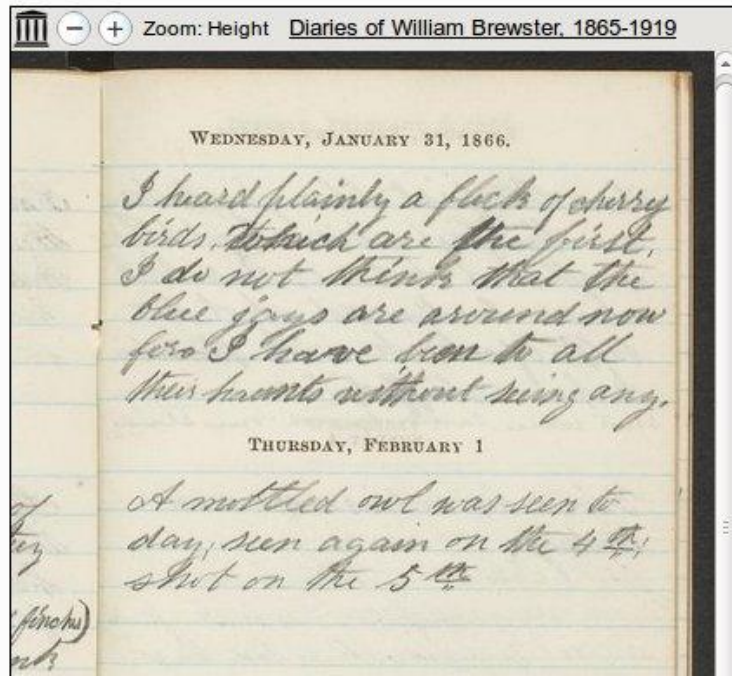

Saw an immense flock of [[snow bunting|snow buntings]] flying; they feed at this season (as do also [[snow bird|snow birds]]) [[tree sparrow|tree sparrows]] and [[gold finch|gold finches]]) on the seeds of certain tall bank weeds.

Wednesday, January 31, 1866

I heard plainly a flock of [[cherry bird|cherry birds]], which are the first. I do not think that the [[blue jay|blue jays]] are around now for I have been to all their haunts without seeing any.

Thursday, February 1

A [[mottled owl]] was seen today; seen again on the 4th; shot on the 5th the lid of the coffin which was painted white. It is horrible to relate that at the grave the corpse is taken out and stripped of all its fine clothes, these a scramble occurs for each different article such as the shoes, bracelet &c. The corpse remains in the grave one year, it is then taken up, the bones placed in a small bag which is buried inside the Church — the grave stone remains as before. — I was too ill to go to Church on any other day but remained on the sofa.

Monday April 25th went out early to shop & found all the shops shut — except the cafés — and a few Turkish Shops in the bazars: we did not buy many things. After breakfast we rode on donkeys up to the castle and explored its remains enjoying the beautiful views over the accumulation of valleys & mountains — ancient remains of aqueducts & the new railway — Boverucubet Boujib and the Kazvette etc to be seen at once — a passing shower brought lovely lights & shadows & 3 half rainbows. No town is prettier than Snyra to look down upon — the houses are so bright & light coloured — the roofs such a gay red, the churches so well placed, uncrowded so as to distinguish each clearly in the lower part of the valley and the whole town so prettily interspersed with trees — chiefly figs and cypresses — as to find it
