Jessica Utrup:The Geolex page that you've been showing us is quite lovely, but when I use it, a number of the links still revert back to the old Geolex page. Is this page still a work in progress (knowing of course, that it is always a work in progress)?

Jessica Utrup:And thank you for all of the work you have done!

Una Farrell:Hear hear!

Margaret_L:Agreed Thanks for all your work Nancy!

Daniel Miller:Ditto!!

Jessica Utrup:Are you doing any work to provide correlated links between formations in the PaleoBiology Database and Geolex?

Jessica Utrup:Yes.

Jessica Utrup:I think he headed west, and another group has taken over part of the database (Mark Uhen and others)

Daniel Miller:You mentioned the COSUNA charts - I think Macrostrat is based largely on these if people are interested.

Daniel Miller:Yes - I think that is a great idea! The raw charts would be very useful. I have also found lots of errors but Shanan knows the data are "dirty"

Daniel Miller:You mentioned the "correlation charts of correlation charts" idea - how much is available for seeing how stratigraphic concepts have evolved over time (formations names etc.) This is very important for dealing with old collections/legacy data.

Ann Molineux:Do you mean PRI?

Una Farrell:i think this <http://www.museumoftheearth.org/>

Ann Molineux:Yes, that is the correct link

Jessica Utrup:Una is right; PRI is The Museum of the Earth.

Jessica Utrup:PaleoPortal (www.paleoportal.org) is an ongoing project.

Pat Holroyd:Wow, I love being mentioned! Yes, the use of names confuse most people because they think of time in terms of numbers

Pat Holroyd:I also like old and young and up and down

Daniel Miller:Sorry - mike is dead on my end...

Una Farrell:very interesting to think about how we should record that in a database

trish weaver:Thank you Nancy

Daniel Miller:Thanks very much!

Catherine Riddle:Thank you

Una Farrell:Thank you!

Ann Molineux:Thank you!

Pat Holroyd:Thanks!
